

Christian City Children's Village is looking for a mission-minded houseparent couple to live on our 35-acre residential campus in Fulton County, Georgia. Houseparents serve as missionaries on campus, guiding children in a gentle, caring way and helping the ministry in other vital ways. Houseparents are tender and patient caregivers, Christ-like role models, educational supporters, and spiritual mentors. They provide structure and teach life principles and values to help each child live to their highest potential. Houseparents work as a part of a collaborative team and help with some ministry needs that are not directly related to house parenting.

House parenting is a very demanding position that requires a great deal of flexibility. Houseparents must have a personal relationship with the Lord to rely on his strength, guidance, and wisdom to provide quality care to the children in their care and promote partnership with the bio families of the children they serve. In addition, houseparents must enjoy and appreciate being a part of a community. They will work collaboratively with other Children's Village houseparents, staff, volunteers, and partners to facilitate the program's success. Houseparents are expected to have a "glasshouse" mentality as other staff will regularly visit the children in the home, and tours of the home may occasionally be given to supporters, volunteers, and other guests.
